

BoaterSupply.com Enters Online Marine Electronics Industry

BoaterSupply.com will be stirring up the waters in the marine industry as it enters the global online world of marine electronics. BoaterSupply is projected to take a big chunk of the online marine electronics and boating supplies market.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 8 /PRNewswire/ -- BoaterSupply.com is proud to announce the company is entering into the global online world of marine electronics. BoaterSupply is projected to take a big chunk of the online marine electronics and boating supplies market.

Devin Gilliland of BoaterSupply.com commented, "We plan to carry the largest selection of fishfinders, chartplotters, GPS systems, boating supplies and marine electronics online, while providing our customers with top-of-the-line customer service that most online retailers seem to lack. It's one thing to sell a product cheaper than your competitor, but when you throw in the best customer service and selection available, we can set ourselves apart from what seems to be the norm in this industry."

Devin is a well known online entrepreneur, spawning many successful online retail stores, such as Greenmark Irrigation based out of Maitland, FL, an online irrigation supply store carrying sprinklers and irrigation products.

BoaterSupply is affiliated with Acom, an Orlando, Florida-based web design and Search Engine Optimization (SEO) company. BoaterSupply.com is the newest online specialty store in a long line of online retail stores for Acom, which includes many stores that deal in the pet and fish market, such as SaltySupply.com. Acom began as an internet marketing firm in 2004 and is known for its search engine experience, as well as its vast experience in SEO.

BoaterSupply is expected to be the next big contender in the giant world of marine electronics and equipment in the coming years, with projected exponential growth over the next few years, resulting in better pricing and shipping rates.
